

I am a Ph.D. student in the department of chemical and biomolecular engineering at UConn and I received my B.S. in chemical engineering from Syracuse University. My research focuses on protein engineering to create tools that help us visualize and study biological processes. Outside of my Ph.D. work, I am an avid reader and a committed fan of reality competition shows.